Kotsu Social Media Marketing

(Concept campaign for a fictional app. Links are placeholders)

Brand name: Kotsu
Type: Study Planner App
Audience: Students (Age 18 to 24)
Platforms: Instagram / Facebook

Post #1:

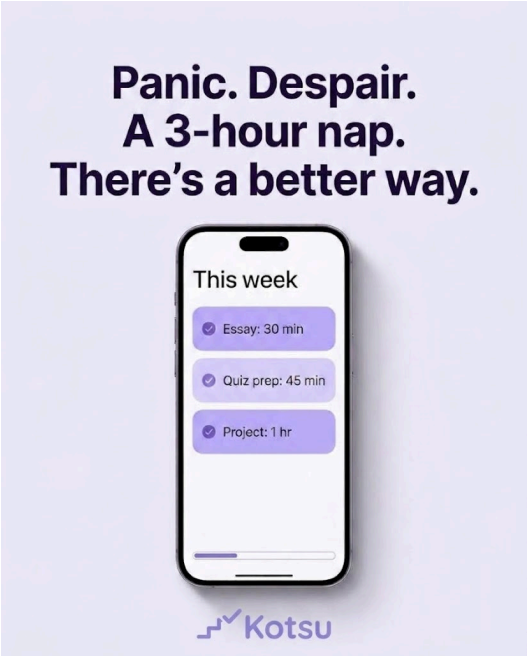

Caption:
Pending assignments, a quiz to study for, a project due, and one day to do it all. 😵

I used to spiral into panic and despair, then take a 3-hour nap. Refreshing, but not helpful.

That's where Kotsu comes in. It's a study planner that keeps you on track with every deadline. Its built-in AI looks at your assignments, quizzes, and projects, then builds a well-spaced schedule so you finish a little at a time, with no overwhelm and no last-day panic.

Its notes feature also turns your syllabus into short, easy summaries, so the hard topics finally make sense. 📚

Link in bio for early access.

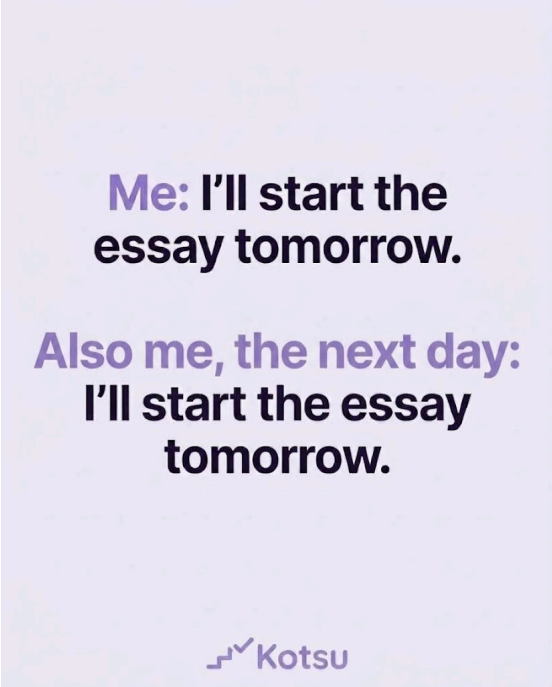

Post #2:

Caption:
We've all been here. 😌

"Tomorrow" is the most productive day of the week, and it never actually arrives. Kotsu turns "I'll start tomorrow" into "I did a little today."

Send this to a friend who says "I have time."

Early birds get Kotsu first. Sign up here: [link]

Post #3:

Caption:
Starting is the hardest part. 😮‍💨

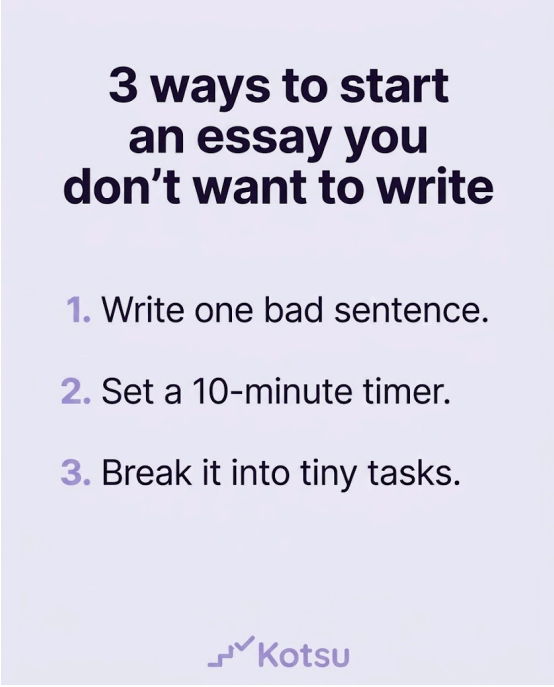

The blank page has a way of making you suddenly remember every other thing you could be doing. Reorganizing your desk. Rewatching that one show. Taking a nap (we've been there).

Next time the blank page wins, try these:

Write one bad sentence. Bad is allowed. You can fix it later.
Set a 10-minute timer. You can stop when it rings. You probably won't.
Break it into tiny tasks. Intro first. Then one paragraph. That's it.

Save this for your next assignment. 📌

Kotsu helps you break big work into small steps.

Post #4

Caption:
Ever opened a syllabus and felt your brain quietly leave the room? 😅

Kotsu's notes feature takes the long, dense stuff and turns it into short, plain-English summaries. You get the main ideas first, so the hard topics stop feeling impossible.

Less scrolling through pages. More actually understanding things.

Early access is open. Be one of the first to try Kotsu: [link]

Kotsu Landing Page

Ever happened to you?

Quiz on Monday? Assignment due on Tuesday? A project due on Thursday? It's Sunday night, and you're opening all three for the first time.

You panic and then decide to take a 3-hour nap. It fixes nothing.

Studying isn't the problem. Not managing your time is.

Start a little today. Finish without panic.

Kotsu turns your overwhelming work into small daily tasks. Join early access and get 3 months of Premium free.

[Button: Claim my free 3 months]
Enter your email and we'll save your spot. Free for the first 500 sign-ups. No card needed.

[Image: phone showing a "This week" schedule with three small tasks, in Kotsu's lavender and purple.]

How Kotsu works

1. Add your deadlines.
Assignments, quizzes, projects. Put them all in one place.

2. Get a schedule that fits.
Kotsu spreads your work across the days you have, so each day is small enough to actually do.

3. Tick it off, bit by bit.
Finish a little each day and watch your progress fill up.

[Image: three simple icons in a row, one for each step.]

What Premium does for you

Plans your week. The AI schedule spreads your work across the days you have.

Shrinks your syllabus. 40 pages become 1 page of plain-English notes.

[Image: a 40-page syllabus on the left, a one-page summary on the right, with an arrow between them.]

The free version of Kotsu is a simple deadline planner. Premium adds the schedule and the notes.

Early birds get 3 months free.

The first 500 sign-ups get 3 months of Premium free when Kotsu launches. Then you choose whether to keep it. Once the spots are gone, so is the offer.

[Image: a small badge reading “First 500 sign-ups get 3 months free.”]

[Button: Claim my free 3 months]
Enter your email and we’ll save your spot. We’ll only email you about the launch.

Kotsu solves your “everything at once” problem.

Kotsu Email Sequence

Email #1:

Subject: “I’ll start tomorrow” is a procrastination problem.

Hi [First Name],

We’ve all said it. Assignments, quizzes, projects, everything. I’ll start tomorrow.

Kotsu is a study planner that turns “I’ll start tomorrow” to “I did a little today.” Add your deadlines, and it turns them into small tasks that seem doable, so you don’t end up panicking and napping for 3 hours.

Early access is open. The first 500 people get 3 months of Premium free, no card needed.

[Button: Claim my free 3 months]

The Kotsu team

Email #2:

Subject: What a Kotsu week looks like

Hi [First Name],

Ever looked at your pending quiz, essay, and project and felt your brain quietly leave the room? Don’t worry, Kotsu’s got you.

Kotsu turns it all into a week that looks like this:

- Essay: 30 min
- Quiz prep: 45 min
- Project: 1 hr

Small enough to actually start. Tick each one off and watch your progress fill up.

That’s the AI schedule, and early sign-ups get it free for 3 months.

[Button: Claim my free 3 months]

The Kotsu team

Email #3:

Subject: Is it really free? Yes.

Hi [First Name],

Still on the fence? Fair. Here's what you'd want to know.

Is it really free? Yes. 3 months of Premium, no card needed.

What happens after? You choose whether to keep it. Nothing is charged automatically.

What do I get? An AI schedule that plans your week, and notes that shrink 40 pages into 1.

The offer is for the first 500 sign-ups, so don't leave it until tomorrow.

[Button: Claim my free 3 months]

The Kotsu team